Ensure the Most Equitable Settlement For Your Client!

As a divorce practitioner, you know that tax consequences can significantly impact the outcome for all parties involved in a divorce action. Using up-to-date information for tax analysis and planning is vital in protecting your clients' best interests. This practical one-day seminar will provide you with strategies for dealing with tax, distribution and valuation considerations when negotiating and drafting a marital settlement agreement.

At this informative program, our seasoned faculty will address the doctrine of equitable distribution. In addition, they will focus on key issues in valuation, including use of experts, standards of value and valuation of closely held business assets. You'll also discuss the roles of mediation and negotiation. Don't miss this chance to hone your skills!

- Evaluate the significance of specific marital assets so you can determine an equitable distribution
- Discover hidden issues in pension and retirement plan valuation
- Take an in-depth look at statutory guidelines for distribution
- Find out which assets need to be valued
- Discuss the different valuation methods and techniques
- Examine valuation strategies for intangible assets
- Get an insider's grasp of the tax implications of divorce issues, like transfer of property between spouses
- Come away with a wealth of ideas for using negotiation and mediation in the settlement of distribution conflicts
